Report on Orientation Program for F.Y.B.Sc.CS Students

Date: 22th June 2026
Venue: IT LAB 401
Conducted by: Asst. Prof. Omkar Madyal (Coordinator, B.Sc. CS Department)

An orientation session was conducted for the First Year (F.Y.B.Sc.CS) students of the B.Sc. CS department. The session was led by Asst Prof.Omkar Madyal, the department coordinator, aimed to familiarize students with the academic structure, National Education Policy (NEP) guidelines, departmental expectations, and overall student responsibilities for the new academic year.

Key Highlights of the Orientation:

NEP Degree Structure & Exit Options:
Students were provided detailed information about the NEP 2020-based degree structure. The flexibility of the program, multiple entry-exit options, and credit-based system were explained. Students were informed that:

- A Certificate will be awarded after successful completion of the first year.
- A Diploma will be awarded after the second year.
- The full B.Sc.CS Degree will be awarded after completing all three years. The importance of accumulating required credits at each stage and the option to exit with qualifications as per NEP guidelines were explained.

Syllabus Overview:
A detailed explanation of the F.Y.B.Sc.CS syllabus was presented. Students were informed about core subjects, skill-based components, and practical's. The focus on industry-relevant skills and foundational IT knowledge essential for higher studies and professional growth was highlighted.

Examination Pattern:
Students were briefed about the internal and external assessment structure, including theory exams, practical exams, internal assessments, and project work. The evaluation pattern under NEP guidelines, Continuous Internal Evaluation (CIE), and the importance of regular attendance and active participation were emphasized.

Faculty Introduction:
The faculty members for various subjects were introduced. Students were informed about their subject teachers, lab in-charges, and mentors. Faculty availability, teaching methodology, and support mechanisms were shared to ensure academic guidance throughout the year.

Department Achievements and Past Events:
Students were given glimpses of departmental achievements, including successful events like Technova, coding workshops, seminars, and intercollegiate competitions. Active student participation and recognitions in academic and co-curricular activities were appreciated.

Discipline, Code of Conduct, and Anti-Ragging Policy:
Students were informed in detail about the college's code of conduct, including expected discipline, punctuality, dress code, and respectful behavior on campus. They were reminded of the importance of maintaining decorum both inside and outside the classroom. Information regarding anti-ragging policies, grievance redressal mechanisms, and the support systems available for student welfare were also shared.

Career Planning and Higher Studies Guidance:
Students were encouraged to start planning for their academic and career goals from the first year itself. Importance of skill certifications, project work, internships, and additional learning resources were discussed. Students were motivated to explore emerging technologies and higher education options aligned with NEP's multidisciplinary approach.

Outcomes of the Orientation:

- Students gained a clear understanding of the NEP-based degree structure, syllabus, and academic expectations.
- Awareness of multiple exit options, certificates, and credit requirements was established.
- Enhanced understanding of assessment patterns and performance expectations.
- Strengthened faculty-student connect through proper introductions and clarity in communication.
- Motivation to participate in departmental events and co-curricular activities.
- Reinforcement of discipline, responsibility, and adherence to the college's Code of Conduct.
- Students were made aware of anti-ragging policies and grievance redressal mechanisms.
- Students were empowered to plan their academic journey with clarity, keeping both short-term and long-term goals in mind.

Conclusion:
The orientation session was informative, interactive, and motivating. The Coordinator effectively communicated all essential academic, NEP-related, co-curricular, code of conduct, and student welfare information. The session concluded with a Q&A segment where students clarified doubts and received guidance for smoothly beginning their journey in the B.Sc. CS program.
