Introduction

On 30th July 2025, the Research and Development Cell of Shree L. R. Tiwari Degree College of Arts, Commerce & Science organized an expert session on "Startup Ecosystem Enablers from Region/State/National Level." The resource person was Mr. Jayesh Khade, a Social Entrepreneur, Startup Mentor, and Business Leader.

The purpose of the session was to provide insights into the enabling environment for startups at the regional, state, and national levels, highlighting the role of ecosystem enablers such as government initiatives, incubators, accelerators, funding agencies, and mentor networks.

Session Objectives

1. To introduce students and faculty to the concept of start-up ecosystem enablers and their significance in entrepreneurial success.
2. To explain the multi-level support systems available at regional, state, and national platforms.
3. To highlight government policies, schemes, and institutional frameworks supporting startups in India.
4. To familiarize participants with the role of mentorship, funding agencies, angel investors, and innovation councils.
5. To encourage students to leverage available resources and pursue entrepreneurial opportunities.

Highlights of the Session

- Mr. Jayesh Khade elaborated on the role of ecosystem players such as incubators, accelerators, government programs, industry mentors, and venture capital networks.
- Discussed Startup India initiatives, state-level start-up policies, and region-specific enablers.
- Practical insights on how students can connect with local innovation hubs, I&E cells, and incubation centres to scale their ideas.
- Emphasis was given to the importance of networking and mentorship in early-stage entrepreneurial success.
- Real-world examples were shared to showcase how startups benefitted from ecosystem support.

Expected Outcomes

- Enhanced awareness of supportive structures for startups at different governance levels.
- Understanding of available funding opportunities, mentorship programs, and innovation networks.
- Motivation for students to participate in regional and national start-up challenges.
- Encouragement of faculty members to serve as mentors for budding entrepreneurs.
- Development of an entrepreneurial ecosystem within the institution.

Feedback Analysis (Indicative)

1. Session Content & Relevance – Most participants found the session highly informative and relevant to entrepreneurial aspirations.
2. Speaker's Delivery – Mr. Khade's real-world experience and practical guidance were appreciated.
3. Student Engagement – High level of interest observed, with students actively participating in Q&A discussions.
4. Practical Utility – Students expressed motivation to apply insights into academic projects and start-up initiatives.
